

Conference

Applied Forensic & Investigative Psychology as Practical Tools for Law Enforcement

Hosted by the Forensic Psychology Research Programme, Department of Applied Psychology, University College Cork

Supported by Crimestoppers
1800 25 00 25

Thursday & Friday 4th & 5th September

Boole 4

University College Cork, NUI Cork, Ireland

A major event for police, practitioners, policy makers, academics, students and researchers. The aim of this conference is to explore how forensic and investigative psychology can aid in law enforcement issues.

Key-Note Speakers

SPECIAL AGENT MARY-ELLEN O'TOOLE,
Behavioral Analysis Unit, FBI, Quantico,
DOUG STEAD,

Toddington International, Canada,

EARL MOULTON

Royal Canadian Mounted Police Assistant Commissioner (ret)

PROFESSOR DAVID CANTER,

International Centre for Investigative Psychology, UK.

and key senior figures from:

Dept. of Applied Psychology, UCC; COPINE; School of Medicine, UCC; An Garda Siochana; National Policing Improvement Agency (N.P.I.A), UK; Centre for the Exploitation and Online Protection of Children (CEOP), UK; Grampian Police; Scotland Violence Reduction Unit; IPOL - National Police Agency of the Netherlands; Irish Prison Service, Forensic Division, Psychological Society of Ireland (PSI) and INTERPOL.

Conference fee: €300

Student fee: €170

For further information and a registration form email forensicpsych@ucc.ie / C.Staunton@ucc.ie

